Simple Port Tester Portable is a tool which will allow you to test your router's firewall settings and port forwarding. To do so, this program sends a packet through the port. To do so, Simple Port Tester Portable will open the connection and send it through the port, at the chosen IP. You can manually enter the port number into the program or simply choose one from the list of your ports or the system's defaults. Note that the latter will only work if you allow them. You can also do it automatically using the user-defined search function. Also, Simple Port Tester Portable can perform a ping test to check if a port is open or closed. You can also set a timeout if needed. Key features:

- Usage of a simple and intuitive interface
- Automated test of a port (manual mode possible) • Picking a specific port from the list or the system's defaults • Saving the port number into the program's database and generating a list of the opened and closed ports • Check if a port is open or closed using a ping test • You can set a timeout • Pinging an IP with the program • Simply one-click installation • Fully portable • No changes to the Windows registry • Languages: English, German, French, Spanish • Optimized for x64 Windows systems • Support for the IPv4 and IPv6 protocols • Great response time • No errors or bugs were detected Simple PORT tester runs with the powerful and award-winning Broodwar-GUI (It allows you to manage your ports via the classic menu, in a panel near the taskbar. Its main features are:

platform: Windows 10 64 Bit We found some issues with the interface: - Some items on the interface are not active (eg: Status etc...); - The program is not using some "grayed" icons (eg: For VLC, It is using a grey "V" icon, instead of the actual one that we used); - The menu item to generate the port list is not active (eg: For VLC, we have a grey "New Port" button, instead of the actual one we used); - The following issue: The external IP will be the same than the one which is defined on the interface (if an external IP is given, it will use this as the local IP to the interface); - The following issue: the program does not work with multiple IP (eg: if we have an IP like 203.45.5.4 and an IP like 203.45.5.5, the program will only consider the last IP); - The following issue: when we pause the program, a pop-up message says that the program is frozen, and there is no way to open it again (eg: if we get a popup message saying that the program is frozen, and we click OK, the program still shows as frozen, and we cannot close it to continue with the test, unless we reboot the PC); - The following issue: when we close the program, it says that the program stopped working, but it is still working even if we close it (eg: if we close the program and do not do anything else, even if we try to restart it, it still shows as frozen, and we cannot close it, unless we reboot the PC).
