The backgrounds on a computer screen are sets of pictures that keep flickering, waiting for someone to touch the monitor. These time-pass distractions are usually used as a way to escape from the reality of the modern technological world. But not everyone wants to be engaged with so many visual elements. For those that desire something different, there is now a way to have an empty space on the desktop that will not attract the attention of others. This also happens to be a perfect tool for those that are not fond of the blurring images that scrolling on the windows will cause. By using the screensaver software, you can change the space of this screen into one full of fascinating images. The application is completely free and does not require any additional services. On the one hand, you can have the main wallpapers of the screensaver fit your system perfectly, and on the other, there are five other screens for specific occasions. But, there are also things to think about. The greater the resolution of the screen will be, the more likely it is that the picture will be blurry. For the less enthusiastic monitors, the application also offers you the chance of simply having a black screen. The interface of the program is quite simple, and the installation process is also easy. It does not require you to have a large amount of knowledge to set it up, making it accessible for everybody. The beauty of the application is that it enables you to choose from 10 different animated backgrounds. These backgrounds are customizable, and you will have the opportunity to choose from some different options such as the ones on top of the page. You can also set up the speed of each movement of the background and also the amount of changes it will make. The rotation speed can be tailored to the hardware of 09e8f5149f
