The most important reason to use Photoshop Elements is that it is less expensive than a full-featured version of Photoshop. You can create a collage by pressing one button to align all images in a single folder or e-mail. There are two modes: "Auto-align" and "Align without rotation". There is also a "Rotate all images" option to align images without rotation. You can use "Rotation" to rotate the images. You can use "Align to straighten" to correct an image when straightening. Determination of homocysteine in human serum using a microbiochip. A microarray chip for the study of homocysteine (Hcy) has been developed and optimised. The chip consists of six groups of eight spots, where each spot contains a specific dilution of Hcy in an ammonium carbonate buffer at pH 10.8. One spot from each group of eight spots containing a specific Hcy concentration is hybridized with its respective RNA fragment. Subsequently, the chip was examined by laser scanning microscopy. With help of this new tool, it was possible to determine Hcy at concentrations from 0.4 micromol/l to 10.0 mmol/l Hcy in the buffer. For the quantification of Hcy, the standard method was developed using Varian amino acids analyser. For routine use, the microarray chip was hybridized with an RNA probe produced by PCR. An In Vitro Evaluation of Two Periradicular Cotton Rods for Resection of the Root Apex. To compare the behavior of two periradicular cotton rods (Control) and a conventional cellulose-based cord. Each group of cotton rods (n = 15) was randomly cut into two equal halves. Half of each group was dyed. These samples were put in a sterilized Transpore Glue bone impregnation chamber filled with sterile artificial saliva with glutaraldehyde added (5%) and placed in an incubator at 37°C and 100% humidity for 60 days. The other half was left free (Control). A similar periradicular device made from GUR 1410 cellulose (Controls) was also placed in this chamber for 60 days. The specimens were stained with P.A.H. (Pascal's Aniline Healion) solution and examined under an optical microscope after 60 days. To evaluate the dentine permeability, the dye penetration capacity of each group was evaluated by measuring the dye extracted from the above chamber with 3 mL of 15% acetic acid solution for 30 minutes. The results were statistically analyzed using ANOVA and Duncan tests. In the dye penetration capacity test, there was no significant difference in the groups when they were evaluated for the first 30 seconds ($p > .05$). A significant difference was observed between the groups after 30 minutes ($p = .00$). The conventional cotton rod degraded faster than the other ($p = .00$). The two types of cotton tested were accepted by the periodontal ligament.
